Video transcript

The workday of a NW Natural field technician is spent going from customer to customer.

But when a technician gets a call from dispatch about a potential odor – they drop everything and head right to it.

That's why, if you smell rotten eggs or sulfur in your home, we're counting on you to go outside and call us so we can get a technician right over to check things out.

At NW Natural, when it comes to your safety, it's all in a day's work.
